JUSTIFIED HOMICIDE IN REMOTE SECTION

lynchburg, Va., May 18.—Details of a homicide Saturday night in Halifax county, some miles from telephone or telegraph connections, were received county, some miles from telephone or telegraph connections, were received here yesterday. The report shows that Claiborne Overby, who lives five miles from Lenning, a small country station on the Durham branch of the Norfolk and Western Railway, the section being a remote one in Halifax country shot Robert Wallace.

From the best information that can be secured, it seems that a crowd of young men from the neighborhood, some five or six of them, had visited a distillery, a mile away from Overby's home, and as they were passing Overby's place they went into the house and attempted to drive him off. Overby seems to have gone upstairs, and when he returned the men crowded him again. He drew a revolver and shot Robert Wallace, one of the trespassers. Killing him instantly.

Wallace was shot through the head, the ball penetrating one of his temples, producing death almost instantly when the shooting took place the hair-drunken crowd beat a hasty retreat, leaving the body of Wallace lying in the yard, and it was not disturbed until some time Sunday morning.

Sunday morning, under the orders of Justice of the Peace W. A. Hunt, of that magisterial district, the body was removed to a church at Crystai Hill, seven miles distant, and there the magistrate, acting as county coroner, conducted an inquest. After securing all of the evidence possible, and considering the tragedy, the jury came to the conclusion that Overby was justifiable in killing Wallace, and a verdict exonerating him from any blame in the premises.

Overby was not arrested, and no warrant has since been issued for him.
